

Obs screen stream mirroring

Continue

Hi guys, I'm a content creator for a mobile game and I wish to start streaming on twitch, I bought "screen stream mirroring" which allows me to stream, but streaming from my phone restricts me in terms of adding a microphone and additional stream stuff. My ideal setup which I want to achieve would be to mirror my phone screen to OBS and then streaming using OBS. Screen Stream Mirroring apparently provides support to mirror to OBS, and gives me a link of the type : TCP://IP:PORT. Now I have no idea where to put this at o: I've spent maybe 5 or 6 hours yesterday trying to look it up and results shown a video plugin I needed to download, but that was for OBS classic, and I heard that this plugin amongst many other was included in studio. I also didn't manage to download OBS classic and download the plugin correctly, but that's a different subject and plan B either way. Help would be so so much appreciated, I usually manage to figure these stuff out on my own but this seems to be beyond my reach), and its stopping me from doing something I'm passionate about Apparently the entire issue was that I needed VLC player installed. the stream is flashing grey from time to time now, but it works You can also try media source Mirror and stream your device's screen for broadcasting.Stream your screen live using this app. Screen images are streamed using a fast NDI (Network Device Interface) format. Use this in your online broadcasts to show your viewers what's happening on your device's screen. This app uses a low latency IP video protocol that is designed for live video production.Please note that for WiFi use, a fast network connection is needed between your device and the network device interface receiver. The device and receiver should be on the same network.Please see the Support page for additional information if you have any issues with connectivity. This version improves overall performance and increases frame rate in some cases. I can successfully broadcast, but it stops after a while... and I have to keep restarting. Next, I can successfully broadcast it but it kept on crashing and it said, "Live Broadcast to Mirror for OBS has stopped due to: Attempted to start an invalid broadcast session." Please fix the app as soon as possible. I can't get this to work. The developer, Thomas Backes, indicated that the app's privacy practices may include handling of data as described below. I have some questions on how to setup Screen Stream with the latest version of OBS (17.0.0) Please see the relevant guides to get some background on the issue: So I'm trying to share my android phone's screen with OBS. I'm trying to connect through USB instead of over the wifi network, so I've entered in the correct URL and setup all required files (APK installer, Disable Driver Signature Enforcement is on, turned on debug mode on the phone, etc.) The problem I'm having is when I try to connect to the URL, nothing appears, and the screen stream isn't picking up that it's connected. I think I have the plugins set in the wrong place for OBS, but I'm not sure because there is no guide for OBS plugins for 17.0.0 that I've been able to find. See the attachments/screenshots for my current setup. Please let me know what to do from the OBS side to get this to work. I'm tech savvy but pretty lost at this point... thank you! You should be using Video Source, not Browser Source. Sorry, where is that option exactly? You probably need the VLC Video Source, for which you'll need to have VLC Media Player installed (. When it's there, you'll see it here: You'll also need to make sure you have the same version (32bit or 64bit) of VLC as you do of OBS. Thanks so much! I'll give this a try and let you know how it worked out this makes much more sense. but one question though, do you connect by wifi or usb? I'd like to tell you that this is a forum, not a chat. In a forum, you first think about what you post, then write a proper article that includes these thoughts. The best posts are self-contained, that means if you take them elsewhere without their context posts, you can still understand what they are about. It's not a chat of one-liners. There is a OBS Discord channel. If the forum is not the correct media for you, you might join there.
